ANOTHER ADMIRAL
ON RETIRED LISTAdolph Marx, Recorder Of Naval Board Has Served Forty-Six
Years.Washington, D. C., May 10.—Today, after a career of 46 years of faithful and efficient service as an officer of the United States navy, Rear Admiral Adolph Marx, famous as the recorder of the naval board that fastened upon Spain the blame for sinking the battleship Almirante, was placed on the retired list of the navy on account of having reached the age limit. Admiral Marx was born of Jewish parentage in Saxony in 1848 and came to the United States when a child. He entered the naval academy from town and graduated with the class of 1868. He served in the naval campaign in Cuban waters in 1898 and later was naval attaché to Governor-General Taft in the Philippines. Recently he has acted as chairman of the Light-house Board.SEEKING REVISION
OF PHARMACOPOEIAConvention Assembled At Washington
Has Added Duties and Powers
Under Pure Drug Laws.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., May 10.—The first session of the United States Pharmacopoeial convention since the passage and coming into force of the pure food law began here today with a full attendance, and will probably continue for at least a week. The United States Pharmacopoeial convention is an incorporated body, chartered under the laws of the District of Columbia, July 7, 1900, and is continuous, with power to conduct revisions of the United States Pharmacopoeia under the constitution and by-laws framed by the convention. The present session of the convention is of exceptional importance, as it will deal with the task of undertaking a thorough revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia which, under the pure food law, will be the standard for the purity, strength and composition of all drugs and medicines included in it.

The last revision of the pharmacopoeia occurred in 1900. Being then merely a standard guide, it was not enforceable by law, but now, under the new food and drug law, the book is an official work, the requirements of which every pharmacist and dealer in drugs must comply with under penalty of the law. The task of the revision committee of the present convention, headed by Dr. Joseph P. Remington, of Philadelphia, will be extremely difficult owing to the fact that the lad was utterly beyond control, that his parents could not make him realize any sense of responsibility, that, according to his mother, he had "no sense of responsibility," when he would run away, that he caused endless trouble to his relatives, his parents, his teacher and to the police force by his actions.

Servens is the boy who confessed to stoning the St. Paul passenger train, to sending an undertaker on a fruitless quest to Monterey, to robbing groceries without his parents knowledge, and many other stunts that have brought him to the hands of the police during the past six months. He also camped out for a week this spring in bars south of the city and has many times solicited lodgings in the jail. Mrs. Servens insisted that her boy was not right mentally and that she should be sent to a home for the feeble minded but doctors who examined him did not agree with her. When she learned that he had been given medical care at the industrial school, her objections were overcome.

Arrested last night while in an intoxicated condition, Elmer Servens, only twelve years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Servens, was today committed by Judge Field to the Industrial School for Boys at Waukesha until he becomes of age, after the testimony of his mother, Truant Officer Durhman and Chief Alphyd had been heard.

That the course taken is the best thing for the boy is the belief of those who heard the testimony of the witnesses. It was brought out that the lad was utterly beyond control, that his parents could not make him realize any sense of responsibility, that, according to his mother, he had "no sense of responsibility," when he would run away, that he caused endless trouble to his relatives, his parents, his teacher and to the police force by his actions.

When she learned that he had been given medical care at the industrial school, her objections were overcome.

Arrested at the same time and in the same condition as young Servens, was Willie Wheelock, not much older and, according to reports, equally beyond control. The case against the latter, however, was postponed until tomorrow morning and the lad's parents have engaged attorneys to fight any attempt to have young Wheelock sent to the industrial school.

Just where the lads secured the power to put them in the terrible state in which the police found them was unknown until one of them stated that they had made the rounds of the saloon back doors and had emptied the dregs of every beer bottle upon which they could lay their hands.

This is the first time that the Servens lad has been intoxicated but the Wheelock boy has been arrested before charged with that offense.

Many of the medical and pharmaceutical associations throughout the country have passed resolutions favoring some policy in revising the pharmacopoeia and there is a strong faction which favors the revision of the pharmacopoeia and there is a strong faction which favors the revision of the pharmacopoeia and definite standards and tests suitable for the use of the practicing pharmacist should be provided for them, in spite of the fact that their therapeutic properties may not command them to the latter. Informed practitioners of medicine. The delegates maintain that the drugs left out will still be used by many physicians and it would be dangerous to leave them without protection of a legal standard.

The convention is a thoroughly representative body. Three of the delegates were appointed respectively by the surgeon general of the army, the surgeon general of the navy and the surgeon general of the marine hospital service, while other delegates represent the bureau of chemistry or the department of agriculture and nearly every important medical and pharmaceutical college and association in the country.

C. & N. W. MACHINIST
SERIOUSLY INJUREDWilliam Welch Badly Hurt When Pinned To Floor By Heavy Engines Tire.

While shrinking an eight hundred pound steel ring on end of 125' of the C. & N. W. roundhouse yesterday afternoon about 3:45, William E. Welch, a machinist, was badly injured when the heavy circle of steel slipped from the hoists and hurtled him to the floor, pinning him helpless, beneath the heavy weight which rested across his body at the hips.

As quickly as possible the large tire was removed and Welch hurried to the hospital where Dr. Woods, the company's physician, made an examination. It was found that while he had been hurt internally, the extent of his injuries could not be determined until today when it was reported that he was resting easily and it was hoped that the effects of the accident, while serious, would not prove fatal.

Welch, who came to Janesville from Kanakuk, Ill., is about thirty years old, unmarried, and has been employed at the local shops only for the past several weeks.

An amendment authorizing the acquisition by railroad companies of the stock of non-competing transportation lines was defeated by a vote of 129 to 160.

RESCUES WOMAN
FROM DROWNINGStillman Jackson Saves Mrs. Peter
Peterson From Death In St. Louis River.

According to advices from West Duluth, Stillman Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Jackson of this city, who left here this spring to take a position with the American Bridge Construction Co., performed a heroic deed Saturday when at the risk of his own life, he saved Mrs. Peter Peterson from drowning in the St. Louis river. The Duluth correspondent describes the incident as follows:

Mrs. Peter Peterson, of New Duluth, wife of the foreman on construction of the steel company's bridge, had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday, and but for the heroic efforts of Stillman Jackson, timelike for the bridge force, would have found a watery grave.

Mrs. Peterson had intended to cross the river in a rowboat. As she stepped into it she tripped and fell headlong into 20 feet of water. Jackson, who was going to row her across, managed to find her after a hard struggle managed to bring her to shore.

The rescuer who is a mere youth, has great trouble in landing his charge as she is a woman of considerable proportions.

County Clerk Howard Lee was the first witness called to the stand. He testified that the blank books which Mr. Welrich used in making a transcript of the records had been on the shelves for 15 or 16 years at the time they were sold to him by the purchasing committee, for $3 apiece; that so far as he remembered, nothing was said about the identity of the purchaser or purpose for which they were to be used at the time of the transaction. Mr. Welrich simply said he could find a buyer if the country wanted to sell.

Attorney Ringer asked that the books be produced in order to identify handwriting, show when the work was done and by whom, and under what supervision. Attorney Jeffris strenuously objected on the grounds that the fact that the copies had been made was cheerfully conceded. Judge Grimm wished to know what the State's purpose might be. Attorney Ringer declared that it was to show that there had been an interference with the business of the office. The court failed to find any such set up in the complaint and sustained Attorney Jeffris' objection on the ground that the question as to who did the work was immaterial and the question of the continued possession of the books by Mr. Welrich was involved in the present litigation.

Postmaster Charles L. Valentine testified that during his term of office as register of deeds, 1893-95, and 1897-1900, latter under O. D. Roe, he was commissioned to "compile" a set of abstract books for the county, the consideration being $2,200. The work cost him between $8,000 and $10,000 and could not have been duplicated for any less amount. Thereafter, by virtue of a resolution passed by the county board, half of the fees for abstracts went to the county and the other half to the register. The county's income from that source sometimes approximated from $1,200 to $1,500 per annum before he retired from office. In making abstracts he certified as abstractor and not as register of deeds. The private abstract books owned first by Stark, then by Edward Whitton, then by A. E. Moore, and now by McElroy and Hendricks were removed from the office about the time the county went into business for itself.

Charles Gage, who was deputy register of deeds, 1893-95, and 1897-1900, latter under O. D. Roe, testified that in making abstracts the abstract records were used simply as a tract index during his time. Not all the information needed for the abstracts could always be found in the books and it was also deemed good policy to go back to the original volumes for purposes of verification. While he was in office, Mr. McIntyre, the then county clerk, posted a notice in the register's office to the effect that the county abstract books must not be used by private parties for making abstracts for their own gain. No one paid any attention to this notice and no attempt was ever made to enforce it.

Attorney Claude J. Hendricks testified that a separate page for each town, 38 volumes of platted lands, and one volume of farming or unplat lands in the villages and cities were included in the set of county abstract books. The fees charged for making abstracts were a half less than those charged in any other locality he knew about. Evaluated as private property, he thought the county abstracts might be worth $15,000. The books used by his firm had been brought down to 1898 and 1899. He and Mr. McElroy used the county abstracts to some extent as an index for data relating to the intervening period but in drawing up abstracts it was also necessary to look up the records in the offices of the county clerk, clerk of court, and probate court.

YOUR FOOD AND WHAT BECOMES OF IT

Most people imagine that food is digested in the stomach. This is only partly true or rather mostly not true. The stomach secretes mucus and the necessary acids to digest meat, eggs, etc., that is albumin, as most of our food consists of fats and starch. The rest of most cases of dyspepsia is not in the stomach but in the pancreas and small intestines. The pancreatic gland secretes pancreatic juice which emulsifies and digests fats while chyle is the main digestant, digesting all starchy foods, bread, potatoes, pie, cakes, etc. These are all digested in the small intestines. Improper eating or overeating of certain substances or insufficient secreting, necessarily calls for more pancreatic and chyle than nature ordinarily supplies. Now, what's the remedy? If pie and cakes don't agree with you or your stomach is weak, why, take pancreatic and chyle to temporarily assist nature, add to those good stomach tonics like Senn, laetic acid, Camomile and aniseed, and you have a sensible and efficient stomach remedy. Mr. Pfeiffer, our Graduate Pharmacist, has compounded this prescription so many times that we now call it Digestion Remedy No. 20233. We advise you to prescribe this number and at once get a bottle for any case of indigestion or stomach trouble. The price is 50c. JURY ON NEW TACK; DETECTIVES WORK

INVESTIGATING BODY AT CHICAGO SEEK ANOTHER LINE OF EVIDENCE.

LORIMER WILL NOT RESIGN

Senator Declares He Will Not Give Up His Seat While Scandal Connected With His Election Is Being Aired.

Chicago, May 10.—Senator William Lorimer emphatically declares he will not resign his seat in the United States senate notwithstanding that grand juries in Cook and Sangamon counties are investigating the bribery scandal connected with his election to that body.

Under the direction of State's Attorney Wayman the Cook county grand jury took a new start in its bribery quest. It is understood that the jury is now seeking a new vein of evidence; the one leading to Lee O'Neill Browne as dispenser of money is about worked out. Further confessions from members of the Browne faction in the legislature can only corroborate the evidence already in, it is said. What is now wanted is evidence against Democrats, not in Browne's faction, or Republicans whose voters were bought, if there are any.

State's Attorney Wayman admitted that he has had members of private detective agencies at work serving subpoenas on downstate legislators. The prosecutor, however, refused to disclose the names of the men summoned, although he admitted that they have not been mentioned heretofore in connection with the senatorial bribery probe.

New Witnesses Heard.

The first of the new witnesses to appear were William Murphy of the Fourth District, Charles Naylor of the Fifth, and James J. O'Toole of the Eleventh—all Democrats and Chicago men. Further, they voted for Stricker in the senatorial election at Springfield. They were before the jury only a short time and are thought to have supplied little or no material of importance to the jury.

Representative Henry L. Wheeler of Rock Island was also a witness. He was before the inquisitors for about half an hour and when he came out declared that he had been unable to be of any assistance in the search for evidence. Wheeler voted for Lorimer.

It is regarded as significant that so far in the inquiry there has been no need to resort to the immunity clause in the bribery statute. This is the only statute in this state which makes provision for legal immunity for state's witnesses. Under it, when a witness is required by the state and is reluctant to testify, a judge can enter an order making him immune from prosecution, and then he can be compelled to testify under pain of contempt.

An early trial of the indictment against Representative Lee O. Brown was indicated by the report from St. Louis that the day and night registers of the Southern hotel for June, 1909, had been sent to Chicago for Mr. Way-

DR. H. CLARK HYDE ON WITNESS STAND

ACCUSED MURDERER OF COL. SWOPE TESTIFIES IN OWN BEHALF.

HIS WIFE ALSO A WITNESS

Woman Nearly Collapses as She Begins Her Testimony—Physician Declares Millionaire and Miss Hunton Both Died of Apoplexy.

Kansas City, Mo., May 10.—Dr. H. Clark Hyde and his wife took the witness stand in the Swope's murder trial in defense of the accused physician. Doctor Hyde offered no excuses for his actions in treating the sick at the Swope home.

Says Hunton Died of Apoplexy.

Among the numerous statements made by Doctor Hyde were these:

"Miss Hunton died of apoplexy; Twyman never said one word about too much blood being taken; nothing of the sort was heard until after January 12; I gave Colonel Swope a Holland digestive capsule; I took that medicine to the nurse, Miss Kollar, the night of October 2; I warned Mrs. Swope a year and a half or two years previously not to use the elixir water; Colonel Swope never spoke to me about his will; I did not know what my wife would inherit. Not until after the reading of the will did I hear the word ' residuary.'"

Every jurymen listened as intently to the witness as they had listened for nearly five hours to Mrs. Hyde who preceded her husband on the witness stand. After 20 minutes' questioning Doctor Hyde was rolling a handkerchief in his right hand and occasionally wiping his forehead. His answers, however, were prompt and carefully worded. He spoke clearly so that every one in the room could hear him.

Referring to Miss Hunton and the bleeding he declared earnestly that between two and three pints of blood were taken and that never until after January 12 did he hear a word of suspicion about the incident.

Colonel Swope's Heart Weak.

Strychnine, in Colonel Swope's condition, Doctor Hyde said, was proper. His heart needed strengthening. He ordered the nurse to give one-sixteenth of a grain and believed he probably had four or five such injections.

Mrs. Hyde Near Collapse.

Mrs. Hyde made a pitiful spectacle the first few moments she was on the stand. The mention of the name of her cousin, Miss Hunton, brought tears to her eyes and she was unable to speak. The courtroom became silent. Attorney Frank P. Walsh, for the defense, ceased to interrogate the witness. It was feared she might collapse.

But after sobbing for a few minutes Mrs. Hyde composed herself and she was able to proceed with her testimony. Thereafter she made a good witness, speaking distinctly and following the line of interrogation with out difficulty.

Tells of Hunton's Bleeding.

Sallient features of her testimony were her declarations that:

Doctor Twyman adjusted the string which stopped the flow of blood from Mr. Hunton's body. She did not request her husband to stop the bleeding.

Col. Thomas Swope never cried out on his deathbed that he wished he had never taken the medicine Doctor Hyde gave him.

The millionaire's symptoms were entirely different from those described by the nurse who testified for the state.

Used the "Yard" Man's Remedies.

The remedies of Jordan, the "yard" man, were used by Christian Swope until a few days before his death.

The ate of the candy which Doctor Hyde gave the Swope children and it did not make her ill.

She ordered the filtered water taken to the Swope house and said that the family is now using it.

GOOD ROADS WITHOUT MONEY.

The Saturday Evening Post, of last week, contains an illustrated article on good roads without money, which should be read by every farmer and every tax-payer interested in better roads. The article is written by D. Ward King, the man who invented the famous "King drag," in use today in almost every state in the union.

There is no patent on the King drag. It is simple and inexpensive, and can be constructed by any farmer in half a day. What it will accomplish is not a matter of experiment as it has been making good roads every day for a dozen years or more. Mr. King has been called on to lecture on road building in twenty-four states, and wherever he goes a campaign of road building follows, with most satisfactory results. The department of agriculture, at Washington, issued a bulletin fully describing this drag and highly endorsing it. Mr. King has this to say in part:

"To overturn mass-grown customs, to change the highway legislation of states, to revolutionize the road-making methods of the nation, to attract the attention of the road makers of a continent, to improve the common earth roads to an immeasurable degree and at the same time save millions of dollars by reducing road-building expenses; this is the province of the simple, cheap, uncouth but efficient King drag. Little did I suspect when first I rode a drag down the highway that such claims would ever be made."

The initial trip was taken in the spring of 1896, and the result was so pleasing and satisfactory that the work has never lagged from then until now. The effect on the road was instantaneous. The passage of the drag wrought a wonderful change. Whereas the road had been very rough, with two deep ruts in evidence, after the drag had been used it was comparatively smooth, and the ruts, which before dragging stuck out like sore thumbs, were rendered unobtrusive and unobtrusive. Before, none but the hardiest adventurers dared drive out of the beaten track; afterward, there was no need to choose a way, for all the surface was smooth, or than the best portion had been.

The stories told about the King drag and its work are preposterous; they are unmeasurable and absurd; and yet they are absolutely true, but I ask no one to believe, for my only object in telling them is to shock the public into giving the new system a trial.

There is one they are telling in Iowa. In Cedar county a gentleman riding in a spring wagon on a dragged road drove out to one side to allow a four-horse wagonload of logs to go by him. The loaded logs went merrily on their way, but the spring wagon had to be dug out with a spade.

Problems in Mud.

"From over near Trenton, Missouri, comes another. It seems that some years ago a stretch of creak-bottom road habitually overflowed after every heavy rain. It regularly became a mass of mud and water. The community declared that it was a physical impossibility to fill in enough earth to build a roadway, and the authorities were planning to condemn land for a new road a quarter of a mile away from the creek. At this moment somebody suggested a test with a King drag. Although the creek still covers the roadway during each freshet, there has been no serious difficulty with that road since the test began.

"Here is another good one from Iowa. It is told by Mr. Henry Hartman, mayor of Anawh, who relates his first experiences with a King drag in those words: 'I built a drag exactly according to Mr. King's directions, I finished it before noon and put it to work at one o'clock on a single block of our main street. The soil is gumbo and the street was almost impassable, the mud being hub-deep in some places. At five o'clock, just four hours after beginning to use the drag, wagons loaded with four thousand pounds of baled hay were being drawn over the block and were mudding scarcely a perceptible rut.'

"And here is a whopper from Indiana, within one hundred miles of Boston. Mr. F. P. Sandborn began his experiment with the drag on April 22, 1906. 'At the commencement,' he says, 'the mud was from two to eight inches or more in depth. Within three hours time passed at a trot without sinking half the depth of a hoof or burying half the depth of a wheel rim.'

"The most hopelessly impossible of these stories has been reserved for the close of the section. It tells of an incident in my own experience and is highly improbable at first glance as any I know.

"When road dragging was young a few of us would take turns in occasionally riding our drags clear to town. I was halted on one of these trips, just at the city limits, by a huge mudhole. This mudhole reached from one fence to the other and the fences were forty feet apart. My hesitation was caused by the fear that I would get my feet wet, for surely the hole was deep and wide and ugly. Taking courage I drove through. Now I was just enough of a boy that I was curious to know what had happened, so I stopped to take a survey of the scene.

The view presented so impressed me that I turned my team and drove through again. The mudhole was now between me and town, which called for a third trip; and, of course, the return toward home evened things up by another voyage—four passengers in all, two on each side. Hooray! there has never been a mudhole there since."

There are only a few of the illustrations used by Mr. King. He advises every farmer to make a drag, following instructions in the government bulletin, and claims that going over the road half a dozen times after a rain will convert the worst quagmire into a boulevard. Rock county farmers can well afford to try it.

John Cullin O'Laughlin, the much-quoted writer for the Chicago Tribune, is back in Washington after trucking Roosevelt a month, to no purpose just now he is engaged in guessing what the president will do with Lorimer and giving what consolation he can to the insurgents and democrats. The Tribune has joined the ranks of the disgruntled press and is playing a close second to Collier's in efforts to discredit the administration.

In the death of George Brander, the noted German publisher of Milwaukee, the state has lost a good man, and the press one of its most able exponents. Mr. Brander stood at the head of the German publishers in America and his influence was always on the side of right and justice. He possessed a love for the work which absorbed his time and energies and public life offered no attractions.

The Hartford and New Haven railroad has advanced its rates to commuters to two cents a mile, and there is a general kick all along the line. The company claims that the recent advance in wages calls for more revenue. In many states the two cent passenger fare is fixed by law, and it will not be surprising if all commutation rates are withdrawn.

American railroad securities are now being issued in small denominations so that they can be handled as a popular loan. The people of France are liberal patrons, and the new issue is also popular at home. This policy will have a tendency to keep money in circulation, and is a good thing for the country.

With but little being accomplished in Washington an early adjournment of congress is most desirable. The country is not suffering for more legislation. The present session will pass history as a "do-nothing" session, and all because of disloyalty and strife within the ranks of the administration party.

Heart to Heart Talks.

A LEAP INTO THE DARK.

A young man of Chicago has sued his wife for divorce because they quarreled over the kind of meals she served him.

He wanted chicken dinners every day. He said he was willing to put up with cereals and coffee for breakfast and take his luncheon downtown, but contended for chicken dinners in the evening.

During the wife's testimony the fact was brought out that the husband had allowed his wife $5.00 a week to keep the house and furnish the meals.

Unreasonable?

Certainly. But this sort of thing, strange as it may appear, has been the cause of many a modern divorce.

The average young man knows scarcely anything concerning the cost of keeping a house. He falls in love with a pretty face or a pair of eyes and proposes marriage because he wants the girl.

Unreasonable?

Certainly. But this sort of thing, strange as it may appear, has been the cause of many a modern divorce.

That Cavity

That cavity that you have been feeling with your tongue for the past days or weeks will grow larger and larger if not attended to. It will begin to ache shortly.

A young man came into my office the other day and said:

"Doctor, I can't feel a couple of cavities in my teeth with my tongue. They don't hurt yet, but I want them filled."

The younger generation seems to be getting where.

EARTH PASSES THRO' TAIL OF THE COMET NEXT WEDNESDAY

Scientists Looking Forward to Event
Which Occurs Eight Days
From Today.

Eight days hence will occur the event to which the scientists are looking forward—the passing of the earth through the tail of Halley's comet. Scientists say that there will be no danger to life, but there will be an electrical disturbance, which will affect most adversely the wireless telegraph system. The comet is now 37,000,000 miles away from the earth and is becoming brighter every day, the peacock tail showing as a long, thin line. The sky was clear this morning for a short time and celestial wanderer was visible for a short time, but was later obscured by clouds. Tomorrow morning it rises at 2:18 and can be best viewed at 2:30. After May 18, its visit to earth ends and it starts on its seventy-five year journey through infinity, traveling through 82,125,000,000 miles of space before again appearing to the inhabitants of this sphere.

History of Comet.

Superstition says that the appearance of the comet, forebodes or brings with it, some great disaster, war, plague, or some other great disturbance, and despite the fact that it has been proved by scientists that great wars and other occurrences have not been caused by it, many people still hold to this belief. The comet has a history which is intimately related not only to the history of astronomy, but to the history of civilization as well, which causes this belief.

In these twentieth century days it is difficult indeed to realize how fear inspiring was this famous wanderer of the sky. In B. C. 11 B. C. hung suspended over the city of Rome, and the startled populace interpreted its appearance as a warning of the impending death of Aeneas. Josephine saw it like the luminous blade of a gigantic sword, held menacingly over the doomed city of Jerusalem in 66 A. D. When it shone up again in 141 A. D., a plague was decimating China and also Europe, in Naples alone 400,000 perished from the scourge. In 218 A. D. Halley's comet was again a badge of war, for it marked the murder of Emperor Macrinus of Rome, whose death had been foretold so accurately by the augurs, because of the comet, that their hand in the assassination was only too apparent. Dion Cassius saw the comet in that year and described it "as a very fearful star with a tall stretching from the west toward the east."

Attila, self-styled "Scourge of God," must have seen Halley's comet in 451 A. D. and marvelled at its meaning, just before that famous battle of Chalons in which his headlong career of destruction through central Europe was checked by the Romans. Merlin, the famous wizard of King Arthur's court, was inspired by the comet in 500 to prophesy the succession of Uter to the throne occupied by Ambrosius. Moreover he saw in certain rays that were thrown off by the comet signs of the birth of a mighty prince.

When the comet flared up in 684, the black plague was ravaging the world. In France, the appearance of Halley's comet in 837 was firmly believed to have presaged the death of Louis le Debonnaire. The king himself was of the same opinion, for, according to Egland, when he first saw the comet he said to the historian: "Go up to the terrace of the palace and look. Then come back at once and tell me what they last seen."

"Thou must tell me true what it forebodes to me. Changes in kingdoms and the death of rulers are foretold by this sign."

To William of Normandy Halley's comet blazed like a gaudy star, a harbinger of the victory with which his invasion of England in 1066 was to be crowned. Perhaps the oldest picture of any celestial apparition is that of Halley's comet embroidered by Matilda, William's queen, and her ladies, on that Bayeux tapestry which is the pictorial record of the Norman triumph. Thus the comet ushered in a new era for England. In 1145, 1222, 1301, 1375 Halley's comet alarmed humanity, for it seemed to have some connection with the disasters of those years.

Most startling must its appearance have been in 1456, during the terrible war which raged between the Turks and Christendom. The Moslems saw it in the sky, a luminous nebula, whose crescent shape augured well for the Mohammedan cause. Christianity was so alarmed that the Pope called for a general crusade to be sold and bells to be tolled. It dashed on the world in 1607 when Jamestown was settled, and thus ushered in the birth of a mighty nation. Shakespeare and Galileo must have beheld it and wondered at it in their different ways.

Whenever it appeared, nations were at war, plagues were disseminating, monarchs were dying and floods were raging. Is it any wonder that its past history has been a history of blood, pestilence, famine, and death?

If the comet holds no terror for us now, it is we now know, there is absolutely no connection whatever between its past appearances and the terrible events with which they were associated. It is because Edmund Halley subjected it to the rigorous test of the law of gravitation. When he discovered that the comet of 1682, the comet which we now call by his name, had also made its appearance in 1607 and 1681, he despaired forever the frightful affinity with which comets had been hedged and added a new class of bodies to the solar system. Since his day comets have become the objects of dispassionate scientific study, and their movements present new problems for the solution of the mathematical astronomer.

John Callahan Swores P. J. Rider Sold
Him No Liquor—Non-Suit Granted—
Case Smacked of Perjury.

Patrick J. Rider charged with violating the ordinance by retailing liquor on the Sabbath day, appeared in municipal court this morning with his counsel, Thomas H. Nolan. The state was represented by City Attorney H. L. Maxfield. "Adjudgement" was taken at 1:30 this afternoon. Officer Patrick Fanning took the stand for the prosecution and testified that he arrested John Callahan as he was emerging from the side door of Rider's place last Sunday and found two bottles of liquor on his person. Callahan, who is alleged to have admitted to Chief Appleby and other officers that he obtained the "hooch" at Rider's place, took the stand and swore that he did not secure any intoxicants at saloon on the day in question. Attorney T. S. Nolan moved for a non-suit and the motion was granted, but Judge Pfiffel took exception to express well-known here.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that the defendant in this case sold liquor on Sunday and that one witness has perjured himself on the stand. It would be a good thing for the morals of this city if an action for perjury could be started and maintained against him. It might put an end to the farcical turn which is repeatedly given to these prosecutions for Sunday selling."

WHERE JOHNSON WILL DO HIS TRAINING.

San Francisco, Cal.—Seal Rock hotel is to be the training camp of Jack Johnson. It is on the ocean boulevard, just out of San Francisco. Much of the hotel the country is somewhat hilly and it was these hills which attracted Johnson as much as any other feature. According to present plans he will spend much time climbing hills every day. Another point which appealed to him was the smooth roadway along the ocean boulevard. On this roadway he will do his running and open air exercising stunts.

The pavilion of the Seal Rock is fitted up with a stage, on which Johnson expects to do his training, and ample opportunity will be afforded those who wish to see the title holder in action to view him from seats in the theatre.

KILL THE GERMS

That's the Only Way to Cure
Dandruff, and Parisian Sage
is the Only Killer

"Parisian Sage," said a New York barber, "will kill the destructive and persistent germs of dandruff, and abolish the disease. There may be other remedies that will do the same, but I never heard of one."

And just read what one of the foremost barbers of Springfield, Mass.,
says:

"Dear Sir, I used your Parisian Sage and found it better than any other. It is the best hair restorer
I ever used, and I have used them
all. I find it a great dandruff remover also. You should get it in to all the barber shops, and get the barbers to use it, as it is great."—
Geo. A. Smith, 739 Main Street,
Springfield, Mass.

Parisian Sage seeps into the scalp,
and when it reaches the roots of the hair it not only kills every dandruff germ, but it supplies the hair with just the right kind of nourishment
to put vigor and strength into it and make it grow.

Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. Use it one week, and you will never give it up.

Parisian Sage is guaranteed by people's Drug Co., to stop falling hair;
to cure dandruff; to keep hair from falling; to stop itching of the scalp;
or money back. Price 50 cents a large bottle at The People's Drug Co., or by express, charges prepaid, from the American Makers, Glouces. Mfg.
Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THIS, I know by the way she went down that walk that you've hurt Evelyn's feelings."

"Why, I don't see how I could have. I didn't say anything that could possibly have offended her."

"What did you say?"

"Why I just said 'Goodnight' and, let me see, O, yes, 'Come again when you can't stop so long!'

"That's it. She's hurt. She won't come again for an age!"

"She couldn't be such a little fool."

"Oh, you don't know Evelyn. She is no terribly sensitive. You must go and see her and smooth it over."

Is there any type of person on earth any harder to get along with than an Evelyn?

If there is I haven't met it.

Carlyle says:

"The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none."

In the same way the hardest of faults to deal with are those which their possessors do not recognize as faults.

And in the first rank of those is supersensitivity.

Almost all people possessed of this trait regard it,
for some inexplicable reason, with great pride.

And yet is selfishness a thing to be proud of?

And what else is this exacting, querulous, childish bid for perpetual sympathy and attention, than one of the most exasperating forms of selfishness?

"I can't help it," says the sensitive person. If you venture to suggest that she (or it's more apt to be "she") and the world about her might be somewhat happier if she were a shade or two thicker-skinned. "It's my disposition."

If you watered a plant every day and heaped fertilizer around it, would you say you could not help its growing?

There may be some sensitive persons who have the common sense to struggle against this handicap in the race for happiness, but the majority seem to glory in their painfully delicate sensitivities.

They are positively on the alert for chances to go off hurt, and make you tell them how sorry you are, and that you really didn't mean it at all.

They are as happy over a chance to shed tears because they are not wanted somewhere as a kid is over the prospect of going to the circus.

And the more you coddle and sympathize with them, and reassure them, the worse they are, because coddling, sympathy and reassurance and the chance to be the center of attention, are just what they are after, and that brings me to what I started to say.

Don't! Don't "go and smooth it over."
Don't say you are sorry. Don't coddle them. Don't reassure them.

It may seem kind at the time, but in the end it's cruel.

Whenever you have to deal with such people, steel yourself, no matter how obviously they may dangle their wounded sensitivities before you, to paternally ignore them.

Supersensitivity is a swelling of the ego.

Nothing is so good for it as the salve of inattention.

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE P. BUTLER, A.M.M.D.

We do not know how much that is charged to depravity is really due to Indigestion. One suffering from auto-intoxication,
drunk-on uric acid, on the pollution and Intoxicants generated in his own body, often does not really know what he is about.
Nervous dyspepsia is one form of auto-intoxication in which the brain is poisoned by the poisons generated in the stomach. We sometimes hear of a man who has held a high reputation suddenly committing some crime,
and we think that he must have been an awful hypocrite all these years. He has not necessarily been a hypocrite at all.
It may be that he has simply got into a miserable state of body. His whole system has become contaminated with poisons
until he has lost his health; his muscle tone, his nerve tone is lowered, and by and by his moral tone comes down with the rest. A high moral tone depends to a wonderful degree on a high physical tone, a high nerve tone.
We are composite beings. Our moral nature, our mental nature,
our physical nature—these three elements of man are interwoven, so that it is impossible to separate them absolutely.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna can hope to get its beneficial effects, and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy, the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package, and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable drugists everywhere; one size, only. Regular price 50 cents per bottle. Get a bottle today

THE JANESEVILLE DAILY GAZETTE, TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1910.

The train is an interesting place in which to study people by the outer garments. No place so quickly reveals the real gentleman or man.

The village girl with her transparent
lacy veil will show her crudity to the ignorant city girl—or for a holiday. The matron who runs to trifles and trifolios betrays herself gladly. And men—well, men are pretty much alike in their outward seeming. Save for cut and quality and variety in neckwear they are a monotony which serves as a background
for the more brightly arrayed women. It is only by their bearing that they betray themselves.

If you are going to take any trips
this summer plan to include in your wardrobe one hat without flowers or feathers. A plain dark turban with ribbon bows may have all the jauntyness and style of the flowery hat
and have the added charm of simplicity.

Then among your shirtwaists include one or two with plain ticks and stiff collar and cuffs. Have the opening in front so that you may walk in easily and not be afraid of getting your skirt caught in a doorway.

Don't talk too loud, or do unusual
or daring things and keep sweet and
pleasant, fair to the eye and cheering
to the heart.

Wear good gloves, not too new, and have plenty of clean handkerchiefs
and you will afford the traveling public a chance to admire you which you may be sure it will not neglect.

Don't talk too loud, or do unusual
or daring things and keep sweet and
pleasant, fair to the eye and cheering
to the heart.

WORK NEW GRAFT
TO SECURE MONEY

SMOOTH STRANGER PLAYS THE RELATIVE ACT ON JANE-VILLE FAMILIES.

CLEVER GAME IS EXPOSED

Claims to Be Long Lost Relative and Then Asks for Financial Aid to Some Western City.

One of the latest games of the "bully wits," those who live by their brains on the backs of others, has come to light in Janesville and is most unique in its planning and execution.
Whether the corner in, anesthetized in being read carefully by the smooth strangers or some other source of information is depended upon it makes a most plausible story to be told and work upon the sympathies of the families selected for the gentle touch.

Two cases have thus far been discovered and doubtless others have been made victims of the smooth stranger who claimed to be a long lost relative with the family history
at the tip of his tongue and an application for money to purchase transportation to some western city where he had secured employment. It was all very clever and smoothly worked out even to "dealing" but failed in the final supreme effort to secure the money asked for.

The stranger in each case was well dressed, claimed to be of English parentage, a scholar, a poet, a school teacher and a dilettante in the world of letters. At one of the homes selected for the touching episode he had carefully schooled himself in the family history by a visit to the family con-nection's home the day previous where his story had been believed and he had been given a night's lodging.

However, he was too glib in his tale and related visiting with an eastern relative, dead for several years, and upon being corrected said it was the son he knew, when the facts of the case were drawn out some years previous to the father's death. At this home he wished to go to Boulder, Colorado, where he had employment
in the public schools.

Unfortunately he was without funds to complete his journey and would not to the now-found relative insist him to continue his long trip. No money being given he asked for a check and the check refused he even suggested that she telephone to the railroad depot to give him a ticket so that she might be sure he was not telling a fib. All smooth and clever, but unsuccessful, and he rejected the idea of working for his passage to the western city when the opportunity was offered him. Well dressed, evidently a man of culture, with poetry at his command by several hours before he gave up his unsuccessful attempt to win the relative's trust.

Having obtained the details of the relative he had visited the day before,
he was at first convincing, but made a few mistakes that spoiled all his efforts.

In the second household reported,
he worked the same tactic but was unfortunately unsuccessful. He had evidently watched both houses until he knew the aged mother of the house was alone and evidently hoped to work upon her sympathies rather than upon those of the rest of the family.
The story in the second home was equally well prepared although it is not known where he secured this information and he might have been able to secure the loan in this case
had not the lady become frightened
by his continued presence.

The matter was not reported to the police and the stranger had evidently left the city for other parts where he may be more successful. He is a glib talker, and his game is so new and unique that he may reap a rich harvest
before he is finally apprehended,
in the second home Denver was the objective point he sought.

PICTURED SALOON
FOE OF BUSINESS

Oliver W. Stewart Delivered Powerful
Prohibition Address at Y. M. C.
A. Building Last Night.

Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, former member of the Illinois legislature, candidate for president on the prohibition ticket, and perhaps the most gifted antisaloon orator in America today, delivered a stirring plow at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening.
He dealt with the saloon from an economic standpoint, arguing that its proprietor was a greater menace
to the general welfare of the community than the thief, because, while the thief takes something of value and gives nothing in return, the saloon-keeper takes something and gives back something worse than nothing.
The grogshop was pictured as a deadly enemy of the markets and a deadly enemy of business. The address was enlivened with vivid descriptions and captions anecdotes and modern instances.
The speaker was accompanied here by W. M. Korek, who rendered several fine solos. A good audience was in attendance.

RETURN VISIT OF
FLOWER OF RANCH

Musical Comedy With the Pajama
Scene Please! Fair Sized Audience at Theatre Last Night.

"The Flower of the Ranch" which was presented here some seasons ago
with Mabel Harrison and Joseph E.
Haworth in the stellar roles, was given another hearing at the Myers theatre
last evening. Nellie Harris as the "Silent Flower" and Jess Harris as the "Silent Lover" were very pleasing in their respective roles and the supporting cast was excellent throughout. The chorus was ample and put plenty of energy
into the refrains of "Just Say You Care," "In the Days of '49," and the other song hits. A fair sized audience greeted the performance.

5,000 mark; and it may take another census or two before this high mark
can be reached.

The Third ward brought in the largest returns, having a population of 1,165. Next came the First ward, with 1,144 and the Fourth with 1,106.
The Second ward is the smallest in the city, contributing only 1,065. The city commissioners have completed their work and forwarded their lists
to the census bureau at Washington.
Complete Arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Chenoweth, who have been here to model in the work of packing up the goods in the old Chenoweth house, which is soon to be sold, left last evening for Chicago.
Mr. Chenoweth taking part of a car of invalids with him. At Chicago he will lead in a team of horses and start at once for Dickinson, N. D., where he is working the large farm there on a large scale. He now has a team plow and fourteen horses at work and is putting in one thousand acres of flax this season. Mrs. Chenoweth will stop in Chicago a week before leaving for the west. Mrs.
Mary Donner, of this city, has gone to Chicago to take charge of the Chenoweth home, there until fall.

Breakfast Record.

John Duehrendorfer, of Co. H., broke all records at the company
range north of the city by making 45
out of 50 possible fifty shots at 300 yards. He also made five bull's eyes out of the ten shots.

Busy Season Predicted.

Local cheese dealers predict a very busy season and prospects were never better than at present. The high prices have brought up the bulk meats and the milk that is sold is being from 15 cents to 25 cents a hundred more than last season. Many of the surrounding factories are cooperative, but there are still many factories that are buying the milk.

There is still a little stock in the cellars, some Swiss and block, but the Hamburger and block are about all sold out, the block orders being filled with new cheese.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Payment.
What man seeks in love is woman;
what woman seeks in man is love—
housewives.

When I reached Washington it was indeed spring, warm, sweet spring. In the wide avenue the straggling trees were doing their best to dignify the city, and flowers were blooming everywhere. Wonderful enough did all this seem to me after thousands of miles of rude scenery of bare valleys and rocky hills, wild landscapes, seen often through cold and blinding storms and peaks and gorges, or on the drear, forbidding plains.

Used more, of late, to these wilder scenes, I felt awkward and still half savage. I did not at once seek out my own friends. My first wish was to get in touch with Mr. Calhoun, for I knew that so I would most quickly arrive at the heart of events.

He was away when I called at his residence on Georgetown Heights, but at last I heard the wheels of his old omnibus, and presently he entered with his usual companion, Dr. Sam Ward. When they saw me there, then indeed I received a greeting which repaid me for many things! This over, we all three broke out in laughter at my uncouth appearance. I was clad still in such clothing as I could pick up in western towns as I hurried on from the Missouri eastward; and I had as yet found no time for borders.

"We have had no word from you, Nicholas," said Mr. Calhoun presently, "since that from Laramie, in the fall of eighteen forty-four. This is in the spring of eighteen forty-six! Meantime, we might all have been dead and buried and none of us the wiser. What a country! The more enormous than the mind of any ocean group."

"You should travel across it to learn that," I grinned.

"Many things have happened since you left. You know that I am back in the race. Has she not made known her presence here? She told me she was going to Washington."

He shook his head in surprise. "Foul play, I fear! Pakenham has back his best ally, our worst antagonist."

"That certainly is strange," said I. "She had five months the start of me, and in that time there is no telling what she has done or undone. Surely, she is somewhere here, in Washington! She held Texas in her shoes. I tell you she holds Oregon, in her gloves to-day!"

I started up, my story half untold. "Where are you going?" asked Mr. Calhoun of me. Dr. Ward looked at me, smiling. "He does not inquire of a certain young lady—"

"I am going to find the Baroness von Ritz!" said I. I flushed red under my chin, I doubt not; but I would not ask a word regarding Elizabeth.

Dr. Ward came and laid a hand on my shoulder. "Republie forget," said he, "but men from South Carolina do not. Neither do girls from Maryland. Do you think so?"

"That is what I am going to find out."

"How, then? Are you going to Blairstown as you took now?"

"No, I shall find out many things, by first finding the Baroness von Ritz." And before they could make further protest I was out and away.

I hurried now to a certain side street, of which I have made mention, and knocked confidently at a door. I knew. The neighborhood was asleep in the warm sun. I knocked a second time, and began to doubt, but at last heard slow footsteps.

"Precisely," said Calhoun, walking up and down, his head bent. "England is preparing for war! How briefly as I might, I told them of the ships of England's navy waiting in Oregon waters; of the growing suspicion of the Hudson bay people; of the changes in the management at Fort Vancouver; of the change also from a conciliatory policy to one of full hostility. I told them of our wagon trains going west, and of the strength of our frontiersmen; but offset this, just as I might, by giving facts also regarding the opposition those might meet.
